Massachusetts And BOSTON GAZETTE. NEWS-LETTER.

Number 3197

Published by RICHARD DRAPER, Printer to the Governor and Council, and by SAMUEL DRAPER, At the PRINTING-OFFICE in Newbury-street.

THURSDAY, May 30. 1765.

The following is from the Public Ledger.

LONDON, April 1.

NOTWITHSTANDING it has been frequently mentioned in your paper by several gentlemen, that our Colonies were in a most flourishing situation, and that it was very hard they should reap all the advantages arising from the freedom of a British constitution, without subscribing something towards the prodigious sums, which in the course of the late war have been laid out in its defence; yet I must differ very much in opinion from your correspondents, with regard to the oppulence of the Colonies. I am in trade myself, Sir, and formerly had considerable orders from the Plantations; but within these three or four years, my business had not only visibly decreased, but even the little I do send to that part of the world is so ill paid, that I have almost determined to discontinue my connections there, and not for the sake of a very trifling profit, run the hazard of losing the whole. Every Gentleman who knows any thing of the American Commerce, knows very well that not above an eighth of the orders, which were sent over in 1763, came over during the course of the last year; and they also know very well that remittances from our Colonies have been so extremely precarious, that it would be a degree of the greatest rashness to trust them with any capital quantity of goods.

The reason of this Decline in the Plantation Trade has been a thousand and a thousand times mentioned. The only Commerce of considerable advantage which our Colonies carried on, was with the neighbouring French and Spanish settlements, who paid a very high price for their goods. This enabled them to send orders of a most extensive nature every year, for the various manufactures of the Mother Country, and put it also in their power to be religiously punctual in the payment of their bills. The Mother Country however through a strange principle of policy tho't proper some time ago to lay a restriction upon this trade, between our Colonies and the French and Spanish settlements. By this means our Colonies have been deprived of the most material channel of their oppulence, and consequently rendered utterly unable to assist the Mother-Country to any degree of importance, by the purchase of its various commodities and manufactures.

This is in short the whole state of the case, and we may exclaim as much as we think proper about the little advantages which our Colonies produce; but our exclamations will be attended with [illegible] tary effects till we remove the cause of complaint, and restore the Plantations to their former privileges.—This we ought to do as speedy as possible, as there is but too much reason to suppose some other European nations will establish free ports in America, and prevent the possibility of this beneficial traffic ever to return to our hands.

A MERCHANT.

We hear that the famous Turk Conjurer has two guineas an hour for his attendance. He has, it is said, been introduced to a great personage, with whom he played at piquet. When they began to play, the Turk told the nobleman he would point him, and in whatever suit he named; on which, hearts was fixed on, and accordingly the Turk pointed him in hearts. The next game, was diamonds, he then pointed him in diamonds. — The Turk presented to the above nobleman, previous to their playing, a letter, the contents of which were, that on such a day he had the honour of playing two games at piquet with ———, mentioning the great person, and that he pointed him once in hearts and once in diamonds; which letter was not to be opened till the games were finished. He will play at Whist with any persons and with any cards, and let who will shuffle them, he will deal the thirteen trumps to himself.

Extract of a letter from Paris.

"The story of the Hiena that was said to have spread terror through a part of the southern provinces in France, and to have devoured seventeen or eighteen persons, is an allegory, invented by some malignant Jesuit, to render the Protestants odious. It is designed to insinuate that the Protestants on a late occasion, carried their resistance to their persecutors so far as to kill several persons, which is a notorious falsehood. The Hiena, to the account of it, is said to have escaped from the collection of beasts in the possession of the Duke of Savoy, and in this circumstance is pointed out the Protestants, who are considered as deriving their principles from the ancient Waldenses, who inhabited the vallies of Piedmont, and were the earliest promotors of the reformation. The dragoons sent to catch or destroy the Hiena form the truest, or at least the most probable part of the allegory, as it is well known that those booted Apostles, with their weighty arguments of fire and sword, are the principal instruments that have been employed in all Popish countries (and particularly in France, notwithstanding the politeness and humanity of that nation) to convert the Protestants.—It is certain that the attempts of the Roman Catholics, and particularly the Jesuits, to blacken the Protestants, and to render them odious, are constantly renewed with peculiar virulence, when the French court or parliament are supposed to entertain sentiments of moderation or humanity towards these innocent victims of bigotry and superstition. The sentiments of the King and the ministry towards the Protestants are at this time, sentiments of benignity and compassion; and tho' they do not tend to favour their opinions, yet may contribute to their obtaining some of those civil rights and privileges, that belong to them as good subjects, and which they have been hitherto most barbarously deprived of. Several men of credit and abilities, who have been consulted by the ministry about the means of repairing the exhausted strength of this kingdom, by giving a new vigour to agriculture, trade and manufactures, have boldly declared the restoration of the famous edict of Nantes, as the most effectual method of obtaining these ends, and of bringing suddenly into the nation immense sums of money, and a multitude of useful and industrious hands. It is not, however, to be expected that royal clemency or ministerial moderation will so far defy the indignation and threatnings of a tyrannical priesthood as to re-establish this equitable edict; but it is certain, that the memorial of the Protestants lately presented to his Majesty, in which they desire that their marriages may be [illegible] legitimate, and their children no longer [illegible] bastards, incapable of inheriting,* has met [illegible] favourable reception; and if the parliaments, which seem disposed, generally speaking (if we except the unrighteous one at Thoulouse) to lighten the burthen of these worthy and loyal subjects, consent to this request, it will certainly meet with no opposition from the throne."

* All those children whose parents were married by a Protestant, and not a Popish clergyman, are in France reputed bastards; and no Protestant can be married there by a Romish priest without abjuring his religion, and adopting the odious forms of abjuration composed by order of Pope Pius II.

LONDON, April 1.

LAST Week the Keel of a second Rate Man of War of 90 Guns, was laid down in the King's Yard at Woolwich; she is to be called the Royal Charlotte, in Honour of her Majesty.

April 2. We hear Dispatches were last Week received from Ireland, of a very singular Nature, which have already been the Subject of a Cabinet Council.

We are credibly informed his Royal Highness the Duke of York intends to visit Ireland this Summer, and that his Highness will set out for that Kingdom some Time in May next.

April 4. Private Letters from Leghorn mention a Report prevailed there, that Commodore Harrison would soon strike an important Blow in the Mediterranean.

Extract of a Letter from London.

"MR Charles Townsend spoke in favour of the Bill, (Stamp Duty) and concluded his Speech by saying to the following Effect:

"These Children of our own Planting, (speaking of Americans) nourished by our Indulgence, until they are grown to a good Degree of Strength and Opulence, and protected by our Arms, will they grudge to contribute their Mite to relieve us from the heavy load of national Expence which we lie under?

"Which having said and sat down, Mr. *Barre arose, and with Eyes darting Fire and an outstretched Arm, spoke as follows, with a Voice somewhat elevated, and with a Sternness in his Countenance, which express'd in a most lively Manner, the feelings of his Heart.

"Children planted by your Care? No! Your Oppression planted them in America; they fled from your Tyranny, into a then uncultivated Land, where they were exposed to almost all the Hardships, to which humane Nature is liable; and among others, to the Savage Cruelty of the Enemy of the Country; a People the most subtile, and I take upon me to say, the most truly terrible, of any People that ever inhabited any Part of GOD'S EARTH, and yet actuated by Principles of true English Liberty; they met all these Hardships with Pleasure, compared with those they suffered in their own Country, from the Hands of those that should have been their Friends.

"They nourished up by your Indulgence? They grew by your Neglect of them: As soon as you began to care about them, that Care was exercised in sending Persons to Rule over them, in one Department and another; who were, perhaps, the Deputies of some Deputy, of Members of this House, sent to spy out their Liberty, to misrepresent their Actions, and to play upon them; Men, whose Behaviour, on many Occasions, has caused the Blood of those Sons of LIBERTY, to recoil within them; Men promoted to the highest Seats of Justice, some to my Knowledge, were glad by going to foreign Countries, to escape being brought to a Bar of justice, in their own.

"They protected by your Arms? They have nobly taken up Arms in your Defence, have exerted their Valour, amidst their constant and laborious Industry, for the Defence of a Country whose Frontier, while drench'd in Blood, its interior Parts have yielded all its little Savings to your Enlargement: And REMEMBER ME, REMEMBER I THIS DAY TOLD YOU SO, That the same Spirit which actuated that People at first, will continue with them still: But Prudence forbids me to explain my self any further. GOD KNOWS, I do not at this Time speak from Motives of Party Heat; What I deliver, are the genuine Sentiments of my Heart: However superior to me in general Knowledge and Experience, the respectable Body of this House may be, yet I claim to know more of America than most of you, having seen and been conversant in that Country. The People there are as truly Loyal, I believe, as any Subjects the King has: But a People jealous of their Liberties, and who will vindicate them, if they should be violated; but the Subject is too delicate, I will say no more.

* A Gentleman of the Army, Member for the Borough of Chipping Wycomb, in the County of Bucks; he was a Major and an Adjutant-General at the taking of Quebec, where he was wounded, and for his Services was rewarded with the Place of Governor of a Castle, but was dispatched from it on his voting against some ministerial Measures.

LONDON,

April 5. Several hundred Barrels of Gunpowder have this Week been ordered to be shipped for Minorca.

A most curious musical clock is making for Lord Bute, with six faces; which when finished will amount to upwards of four thousand pounds.
